The Opers and the Theatres. The Opera and the Theatres.

The Orea.—The "Sicilian Vespers" was given last evening for the fifth time, and attracted a large surficace. The performance was altogether the best that has been given of this Opera at the Academy, and the fine pieces in the third act created more enthusiasm with the uself ence than they have heretofore excited. The Opera will be given only two nights more—those of Wednesday and Friday. The dibut of Albertini, an interesting musical event, will take place on Thursday.

New Bowers Thranse.—A comic piece called " Past
Women of the Modern Time," was produced here last evening, to the intense gratification of a crowded house. The scene of the play is laid in New York, and the plot such as it is, is a new rendering of "Tom and Jerry." The principal part—that of a particularly fast young woman from the provinces, and who assumes vawoman from the provinces, and who assumes various disguises in order to keep herself as fait to the metropolitan doings of her admirer—was played by Miss Fanny Herring, who certainty succeeded in fascinating the audience. Mr. For played the stereotyped Yankee, in the inevitable bell crowned hat, with a great deal of dry humor, and altogether the piece was rattled off in a bisarre and very entertaining way.

LAURA KERNE'S THEATRE.—A burlesque of "Norma," reduced that for a London cony, was successfully preduced.

The principal pieces of the opera are reproduced in a very amusing way, and Mr. Thomas Baker has arranged it in a characteristically novel and original manner. "Norma" forms a very agreeable pen-dant to "The Wife's Secret," which is enjoying a deserved

NIONS, SUGGESTIONS, ETC.

The final meeting of the Special Committee of the Board of Councilmen, appointed to report an ordinance favor-able to the appointment of Inspectors of Steam Bollers took place yesterday afternoon. Councilman Laimners, the chairman, announced that no other public meeting of he committee in reference to this subject would be held, the chairman, announced that no other public meeting of the committee in reference to this subject would be held, as it was one which required to be promptly acted upon. J. B. Warson recommended the inspection of boilers in regard to their mechanical strength, their location, condition and proper management. He was of the opinion that, had the boiler in the Girard House been properly located, instead of being in a place where no one could reach it, no explosion could have occurred. It would be well to keep engineers and proprietors of engines in ignorance of the time at which boiler inspections should take place, in order that the boilers might be seen in their ordinary condition. He would recommend that the inspectors should be regular salaried officers, and also that a school should be established in connection with the Coper Institute for the education of competent engineers. John H. Long, a practical engineer, saif he believed that all accidents arising from steam boiler explosions are the result of negligence or ignorance on the part of the engineer. An explosion is not the result of great pressure, but sudden pressure on the boiler. Gradual pressure would only cause a separation of the cohesive particles of the metal of a boiler, no matter how strong the pressure may be, but it is only carelessenss that can produce an explosion. He would consider one examination in the year sufficient for boilers, but would recommend their frequent inspection. He thought that a boiler was safer outside than inside of a building.

Mr. Battuss, who informed the committee that he is agent to a floston firm, submitted a low water detector, which whisties when there is not a sufficient quantity of water in the boiler, and thus gives the alarm when there is danger. He said these instruments were in use in the Astor House and other hotels in this city. The engineer of the Astor House engineer of the Mahastian Gas Works, had read all the accidents reported in "the principal paper, the Haraton," for the last twenty years. He consi

A Slander Suit Among the Clergy.
COURT OF COMMON PLEAS.
Before Hon. Judge Daly.
Nov. 14 — Orrin D. Judde vs. James Edmonds.—The plaintiff is a clergyman, residing in Louisville, Kentucky, and brings this action for an alleged slander published by the defendant in a work entitled "A Discussion on the Revision of the Holy Oracles, and upon the objects, intentions, constitutional organization, faculties and capacities of the American Bible Union for such Revision. By Two Laymen of the Revised Association and Five Clergymen." The plaintiff in his complaint alleges that he was employed by the American Bible Union Society to revise the English translation of the Holy Scriptures, at a salary of $1,500 per annum; that the services of the plaintiff terminaised on the 31st of May, 1856; that about the 4th of July, 1857, James Edmonds, the defendant, published over his own name, in a newspaper known as the Louisville Journal, in the city of Louisville, Kentucky, a libel giving to the plaintiff the assumption of a string of aliases, calling him a criminal, and saving that he had let himself out as a "cat's paw" for nefarinous work; that, in the intensity of his hatred against the Bible Union for dismissing him, he, with demoniacal revenge, hoped to enlist as tools for his revenge five clergymen.

STORY OF AN OLD MAN AND A YOUNG WIFE—SINGULAR EVELOPERENTS.

[From the Beston Traveller, Nov. 12.]

The people of Canton, Muss., have been somewhat excited within a few days by developements which have followed the death of Mr. James Shaller, a wealthy farmer of that town. We published yesterday a brief statement in regard to the death of Mr. Shaller, the suspicious of four play, the exhumation of the body, and the autopsy, from our Canton correspondent. Our report furnishes the following additional particulars:

offoul play, the exhumation of the body, and the autopsy, from our tanton correspondent. Our report farnishes the following additional particulars:

Mr. James Shaller, the deceased, was a wealthy farmer, of North Canton, about 50 years old. He owned some two hundred acres of land, which had been in the possession of his family for two hundred years, with other property, valued at $8.000 or $10.00. He had always lived a bachelor, until within a year, his domestic affairs having been superiotended by his sisters.

Last Pecember, just before Christmas, Mr. Shaller wont to East Boston with a load of wood, and while there he saw a Mrs. Russell, wife of Patrick Russell, a laborer, with whom, it seems, he had a previous acquaintance. She asked him why he did not get married, and he replied that he had not yet met a woman that would suit him. She said if he woold come in on Christmas day she would have them both there, and introduce them to him. He accordingly visited the house on that day, and Mrs. Russell introduced her two nicces to him. He said be had some doubts which to choose, and finally said he would take them both out to see his place, and then marry the one who appeared best pleased with it. He subsequently did so, and he result of the visit was his choice of the youngest girl.

Her name was Adelaide Vantassel and she was a native of Nova Scotia. She was then a trifle over seventeen years of age, and was possessed of considerable personal beauty. On the 25th of January they were married, and she was installed as mistress of his house, though two of his maiden sisters continued to reside with him.

The marriage relations of the couple, however, proved unpleasant, owing to the discrepancy in their ages, and to other causes. They lived unhappy together, but the girl consoled herself with the hope of his death, and her util mate possession of his property. The body was exhumed on Thursday, and Ds. Ains-worth, of this city, performed an autopsy. The result of his examination was an opinion that a chemical analysis of the contents of the viscers should be made, and por-tions of them were sent to Dr. Jackson of this city for that tions of them were sent to Dr. Jackson of this cay for that purpose.

The jury then adjourned until next Thursday, when a private session will be held.

On Thursday afternoon a warrant was placed in the hands of Deputy Sheriff Rufun C. Woods, who proceeded to the homestead, and arrested Mrs. Shaller, on a charge of adultory. She was committed to lail at Dedham.

Mr. Bradlee has in his possession a large number of betters, written by her to her paramours, and which furnish proof positive of her guilt on the charge for which she has been arrested.

MAP OF CENTRAL PARK.—We have received an excellent map of the Central Park from Commissioner Gray, which shows the original topography of the site, with a diagram of the roads, paths and works constructed and in progress. At the first mentioned place the elevation reaches a height of 107 feet while at the latter it is but twelve feet. The drawing is done by W. H. Grant.
